Monash, a gridiron path to the States

A MONASH gridiron club hopes to launch the careers of the game's future stars.

The Monash Warriors, based at Monash University's Clayton Campus, have already built a reputation as one of the most successful gridiron clubs in Victoria.

Off the back of a Division One title in 2013, head coach Mark Levin said the club wanted to sign players interested in becoming the next Australian to follow the likes of Saverio Rocca and Ben Graham to the US.

"We're one of the oldest clubs, there's only us and the Rangers left from when the league was set up in the mid '80s," Levin said.

The club has won eight titles since 2000.

Levin said television had seen the sport explode in popularity in Victoria.

Register from 10am on Sunday, February 10, at the University's sporting fields.

Details: Peter, 0417 553 982.

Monash Warriors players, such as Rhys Keane, are hoping for another successful season.
